History

Established in 1981 through a bequest by the Kellogg family in appreciation of the care they received, Kellogg Cancer Center has grown from a small outpatient facility to one offering a full scope of hematology, oncology, radiation and surgical expertise.

Vision

Kellogg Cancer Center offers comprehensive care for oncology patients and their families. Located close to home, their collaborative practice model focuses on each individual's needs providing medical, surgical, radiation, psychological and emotional care.

Patient-Centered Care

Most important to the patient, the Kellogg model offers consistent, ongoing treatment from a physician and nurse who work together on all aspects of care. They are the nucleus of the team that also includes psychologists, social workers, clinical oncology pharmacists, clinical nutritionists and nationally certified oncology nurses. The multidisciplinary team meets weekly to discuss each patient's ongoing care.
